

DIGITAL MEDIA MANAGER

Position Summary

The Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, one of the country's leading civil rights organizations, based in Washington, D.C. seeks an experienced and mission-driven professional to serve as its Digital Media Manager. The Lawyers' Committee values the increasingly central role of communications in shaping the debate on its issues, amplifying core themes, building support, and leveraging the impact of its work. The Communications Department plays a key role in promoting the Lawyers' Committee's mission through traditional media, digital and social media, publications and events.

The Digital Media Manager will spearhead the organization's digital and social media strategy, helping to amplify its position as a leading organization on racial justice across all of its social channels. The Digital Media Manager should be highly motivated and capable of crafting effective campaign and promotion strategies that drive audience growth and incite engagement on social channels. The Digital Media Manager oversees content planning, production, and postings that help build the organization's social and digital media presence. Highlighting the organization's mission, its extensive work to combat injustice, its impact across the country, its expertise on racial justice matters and its wins inside and outside the courtroom are the underlying goals of this critical work.
