DIRECTOR OF COMMUNICATIONS

The Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, one of the country’s leading civil rights organizations, based in Washington, D.C., seeks an experienced manager and mission-driven professional to serve as its Director of Communications. The Lawyers' Committee values the increasingly central role that communications plays in shaping the debate on its issues, amplifying core themes, building support, and leveraging the impact of its work. The Communications Department plays a key role in promoting the Lawyers' Committee's mission through traditional media, digital and social media, publications and events.

The Director of Communications will spearhead and drive the organization's multi-tiered communications strategy, helping to amplify its position as a leading organization on racial justice. Ideal candidates will demonstrate a commitment to racial justice and social justice, possess strong initiative and drive, with a track record of success and impact as a media professional. The Director of Communications will assist in developing and executing the organization’s communications plan and focus on leveraging the organization’s expertise and voice in the current environment. Highlighting the organization’s mission, its extensive work to combat injustice, its impact across the country, its expertise on racial justice matters and its wins inside and outside the courtroom are the underlying goals of this critical work.

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

The Director of Communications develops and implements an effective and comprehensive communications strategy that includes press outreach, online advocacy, social networking, public events and publications. The Director manages, motivates and mentors a team of communications professionals and works closely with attorneys and organizers on staff to reach the organization’s goals. The Director supports the Executive Director through the cultivation of strategic media relationships, development of messaging on rapidly changing and complex issues, and drafting talking points. The Director also works closely with the Chief Development Officer to ensure coordination on public appeals and campaigns that further amplify the organization’s work. Roles and responsibilities include:

- Strategic planning for communications
- Managing, developing and motivating Communications staff and interns
- Positioning the Lawyers' Committee as a thought leader
- Overseeing all aspects of the Communications team’s work
- Crafting and implementing high-impact and effective media campaigns for promoting the organization's work, values, principles, wins and its work inside and outside the courtroom
• Pro-actively seizing on interview and speaking opportunities for staff to help showcase the organization’s work, expertise and voice on racial justice matters. Identifying periodic media training opportunities for staff
• Supporting and working closely with the President and Executive Director
• Pitching Board members for media opportunities to leverage their expertise and collaboration with staff on civil rights matters
• Collaborating with the Development Team, particularly on external facing materials such as fundraising appeals, and helping generate ideas to expand the organization’s audience and its supporters
• Maintaining organizational brand standards and organizational identity across communications
• Overseeing online communications and social media strategy. Ensuring that the organization is implementing an eye-catching social media strategy that builds the organization’s stature online
• Creating and releasing publications and other collateral materials, in collaboration with attorneys and staff.
• Appreciation for the power of story-telling and a desire to implement strategies that highlight the communities impacted by the organization’s racial justice work
• Tracking and monitoring the outcomes of media initiatives to help determine impact and to help refine strategy
• Monitoring new trends in a rapidly evolving media industry and identifying strategies that keep the organization’s communications efforts on the cutting edge
• Ability to be creative and pro-active in identifying messaging opportunities
• Writing and editing op-eds, newsletters and weekly bulletins
• Implementing a plan to ensure off-hour coverage of the organization’s work in an increasingly fast-paced and rapidly evolving news cycle
• Demonstrate a commitment to diversity and inclusion within the office using a personal approach that values all individuals and respects differences with regard to race, ethnicity, age, gender identity and expression, sexual orientation, and religion

EXPERIENCE AND QUALIFICATIONS

• Minimum 7 years of relevant experience in press, communications or media
• Established relationships and ability to build relationships with reporters and editors
• Leadership, supervisory or project management experience
• Ability to lead and motivate a team, and an ability to collaborate with staff across the office
• Excellent writing and editing skills
• Strong attention to detail and a commitment to excellence
• Solid and well-articulated commitment to social justice
• Track record as a problem solver with the ability to manage multiple priorities
• Familiarity with online tools including Cision, Canva and WordPress, in addition to social media sites including, but not limited to, Twitter, Instagram, Facebook and LinkedIn
- Ability to thrive in a fast-paced and dynamic environment
- Ability to shepherd projects from inception to completion
- Ability to translate complex concepts for broad audiences
- Desire to work in an environment that is committed to diversity and inclusion
